Projects

KopyKat: As my first project at General Assembly, KopyKat helped develop my skills as a programmer and played a key role in training myself to think programmatically.

Pennyless: Designed for New Yorker's on a budget. I created a crowdsourcing app that allows users to share locations of interest with one another.

Ment: Ment redesigns what it means to be a Mentor. Users can post comments on a topic, scheduling a time to meet up and mentor the user with their particular question. If the user has a topic they need help in, they can post it up and anticipate a response from a trusted and friendly mentor.

CrunchBot: For my final project at General Assembly, I am seeking to diversify myself with new technologies and that is why I decided to build a Slack Bot that will help user's find nearby places to eat without leaving their chat platform. This project is currently being built.
